

Preventing Peer Sexual Harassment in Schools:

Understanding, Actions and Educating

This course offers a comprehensive and participative training experience designed to address sexual harassment between children and adolescents in school settings. Based on the Artemis Project (<https://projectartemis.eu/>) and its educational guide, the programme equips educators with both theoretical knowledge and practical strategies to detect, prevent, and respond to peer sexual harassment. Through collaborative discussions, case studies, role-plays, and reflective activities, participants will deconstruct gender stereotypes, explore the influence of media and social pressure, and develop concrete actions to foster respectful, inclusive, and harassment-free learning environments. The course concludes with tools for self-assessment, school-wide planning, and continued professional development.

Target Group

School & high school teachers

Duration

5 Days

Our Objectives

- Sensitise participants and create a shared understanding of what constitutes sexual harassment among children and adolescents.
- Deepen knowledge about the causes, effects, and types of harassment through analysis of the Artemis Guide.
- Equip educators with practical tools to identify and intervene in harassment situations, promoting safe classroom environments.
- Encourage reflection on gender perspectives and support the creation of concrete measures to integrate coeducational and inclusive practices in schools.
